Time Tracker Paper

After completing the time tracker I can fully say that I am shocked I spend so much time working. The ability to work and go to school as many hours is crazy. I honestly didn't realize how insane my hours were and how little I sleep. After taking this class I have realized that I may have too much on my plate and I need to cut some parts out of my life. I will be evaluating my current schedule and figuring out from there what the best solution for me is. Even without working however, this month has been crazy. I have had a lot of work for two different classes and there has just been so much on my plate.

For my future classes the first thing I can figure is that I am going to spend more time programming and working on my homework and less time working. I am going to figure with my boss this week if I will have the ability to work fully from home or in general just take an extended leave of absence.
